Portfolio Manager viewpoint

Sarah Riopelle, CFA, Vice President & Senior Portfolio Manager, Investment Solutions The global economic backdrop is mixed, but weighing the positives and negatives suggests that the trajectory for global GDP is not that bad. The most significant risk is protectionism, but other threats stem from slowing Chinese growth and European politics (i.e. Brexit). Central banks have abandoned their prior tightening agendas and markets are pricing in the possibility of rate cuts. Government bond yields plunged to very low levels and our models suggest that the risk of fixed income losses is elevated. While bonds may deliver low or even negative returns, stocks can generate single- to low-double-digit gains in an environment of moderate growth, low interest rates and low inflation. Therefore, we continue to overweight stocks, but we recently shifted half a percentage point from our equity allocation into cash, moving further along the path of de-risking our portfolios as the business cycle matures.
